- How?

Different options:

- starting as co-supervisor,
- sharing experiences,
- guide of good practices,

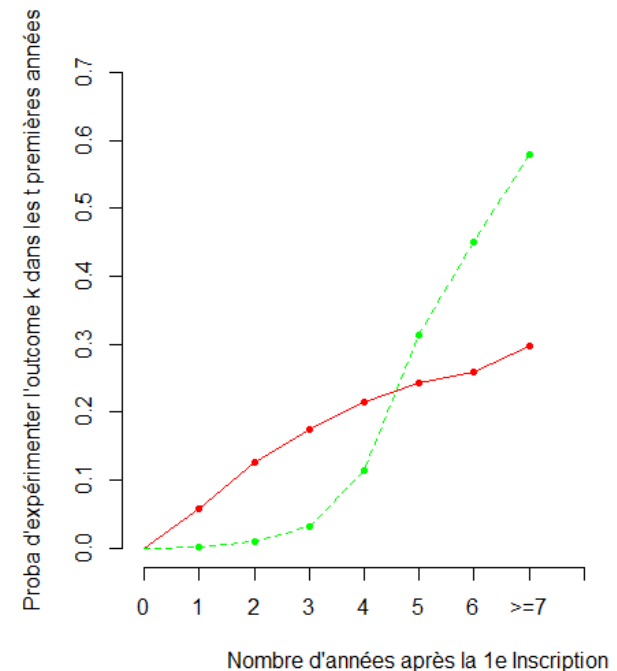

But all universities are not at the same level as far as supervisors training is concerned (e.g. Aberdeen is an example to follow).

- Why?

- Aren't all professors naturally able to supervise PhD Students?
- Would one of the side-objectives be to « uniformize » the supervision task?

- What benefits can be expected?
 - For the institutions?
 - For the academics?
 - For the PhD students?

In conclusion, all participants are in favor of such a training but there is a need to convince the supervisors that it would help.
